BC Federation of Labour: Mandatory paid sick leave a milestone, but five days inadequate

November 25, 2021

Today's paid sick leave announcement by the BC government represents a significant milestone — but still falls short of providing the coverage sick workers need, BCFED President Laird Cronk said today.

"This is an important achievement for public health and safer workplaces," Cronk said. "But we're disappointed that it's only half the 10-day standard that science supports and that is the overwhelming preference of British Columbians."
